- Conversational Business Korean language training
- 20 sessions of 1 hour each
- Training aligned with the banking, finance, and commerce context
- Flexible course material options (standard or customized)
- Delivery by experienced language trainers

SETUP

The program was structured into 20 sessions, each focused on building conversational fluency in business contexts. Depending on the requirement, training was supported by either a recommended course book or customized materials tailored to the participants' needs. Sessions were designed to gradually improve comprehension, speaking confidence, and practical usage in professional situations.

MANAGEMENT OF CHALLENGES

Balancing different levels of language comprehension within the group required careful pacing and adaptable teaching methods. Ensuring relevance to real business scenarios was important to maintain engagement and practical value.

These aspects were managed through structured lesson planning, flexible material selection, and consistent trainer coordination, supported by Globibo.

Korean Language Training for Banking and Finance Professionals

A financial services organization aimed to strengthen its internal communication capabilities by improving Korean language proficiency among its team members. The focus was on conversational business Korean, enabling participants with a basic understanding of the language to communicate more effectively in professional settings.

The client required a structured training approach aligned with real workplace scenarios in banking, finance, and commerce. The goal was to build confidence in day-to-day conversations, meetings, and business interactions, while ensuring the learning remained practical and relevant to participants' roles, supported by Globibo's guided training delivery.

Globibo supports clients in boosting their staff's professional language skills through industry- and function-specific language learning programs. It aims to create corporate training solutions that are both amazingly fun and effective, helping clients maximize the potential of their people and organizations.
